LOVE AND JOY.

If there were one thing in all her experience that Susanna Morton was heartily tired of it was the evident and continuous purpose of mankind to permit her to remain a spinster.

True, she had been one so long it would seem that she should have become accustomed to it; but by some strange fatality woman, that is, the majority of women, never accept their lot in this form with that calm resignation and beautiful Christian spirit which has won for hem the endeavoring title of the gentler sex.

And Susanna Morton had put up with it just as long as she was going to.

Four leap years had passed her by, and she had submitted gracefully, but each year less gracefully than she had done the year previously, and there were moments in the last of the four when she became almost desperate. Now that a fifth had come, her mind was made up. She would take the reins of Cupid in her own hands and drive that harum-scarum little rascal in a manner to suit herself. She knew her good points, one of which was that she was 35 years old or thereabouts, and possessed a poise and balance no man who was looking for a real sensible woman as a wife could afford to disregard. In addition to this she had what men seldom disregard a comfortable fortune.

It was this fortune that had been the real stumbling block in the matrimonial path of Susanna, and not any lack of attractive qualities in her possession, for she was not homely, nor was she anything but charming. The fortune, however, which was hers from her sixteenth birthday, had developed in her a fear that men sought her for her money and not for herself, and, never having fallen in love with any of her courtiers, she did not find it difficult to resist advances, believing, as she did, that men were mercenary wretches as a rule, and that some day the one man in all the world for her would appear, and claim her as his own.

However, he did not appear, and he continued not to appear, until Susanna had reached an age and a firmness of character, to put it mildly, when her fortune would have to be at least doubled to make her as attractive as she was at twenty.

This knowledge had come to her gradually, but was none the less forceful on that account, and she was determined not to let this leap year pass without results of a lasting character.

Of the men in her train were perhaps half a dozen who were eligible, and any one of whom would have made a husband any woman could be proud of. But they were merely friends; not a man-jack of them had ever suggested such a thing as matrimony to her, and, possibly, this was why she liked them. So perverse is the nature of woman.

Among this half dozen was one who found the greatest favor in Susanna's eyes, the others taking their positions after him in regular gradation, and this one Susanna selected as her victim for leap year, resolved to try all the others in case of failure in the first instance.

Truly, Susanna was a desperate spinster.

And no less spry, for in the course of his first call in the new year she began her operations. But it was a dreadful task, and the evening passed without a single step taken forward. The effort had been made however, and courage always comes with effort.

When he came again, she was so wrought up over the work before her that her eyes sparkled and her cheeks glowed in rosy color.

"Why, bless my soul, Miss Susanna," he said, "how pretty you look this evening."

He was ten years older than she, and always assumed that bless-my-soul style affected by elderly men.

"Oh, thank you, Mr. Culver," she twittered, "I'm sure you only think so. I look just as I always look.

"Of course, Miss Susanna, only slightly more so," he smiled, but there was that in the tone which had the ring of insincerity, or at least superficial and society sincerity, which is very nearly the same thing, and which made Susanna despise the flattery of men that so far had meant to her no dissolution of the continuity of her spinsterhood.

She was good natured about it, however, and let Mr. Culver go on with whatever he had to say, for if there was any man who could make flattery any more palatable to her than any other man, that man was Mr. Culver. But it was soon over, and when he had fixed himself comfortably in an easy chair with which he was familiar, he seemed to have forgotten whether Susanna looked like a fright or a fairy, and began talking about all sorts of things, as people do who talk for the mere sake of talking.

At all events, that's the way it presnted itself to Susanna, and she felt the spirit of desperation slowly creeping over her. She took a long breath for encouragement, and tentatively turned the subject of conversation upon the most recent wedding which had occurred in their circle.

"What a pair of fools they were and are," said Mr Culver, sententiously, "to marry on nothing but his salary, and that not big enough for two."

"But they are happy," argued Susanna.

"I suppose so," Mr. Culver unwillingly admitted; "it takes fools to be happy; wise people know too much."

"Are you wise?" questioned Susanna, nervously, for she felt that she was launching herself at this point upon an unknown sea.

"I'm old enough to be," Mr. Culver frankly responded, for Mr. Culver's age was too well known to be denied and too great to be hid under a bushel.

"Isn't there something somewhere about the old fools being the biggest?" laughed Susanna.

"But I'm not so old as that yet."

"Ah!" and her eyes twinkled. "Is yours a case of:

'Standing with reluctant feet
Where the silly seasons meet?'"

Mr. Culver assumed a more serious air and there was no smile on his face when he replied; there was rather a shadow of regret.

"Yes, Miss Susanna," he said, "I do stand reluctant, for I think if I had been more of a fool in one regard I would have been less of a fool in another. That is to say, a man is a fool to waste his life selfishly as I have done."

This was the auspicious moment Susanna had been seeking. She would now lead right up to the matter and find a listener to her proposal.

"Why don't you marry, Mr. Culver?" she asked with directness.

"You are not too wise to consider the question, I hope."

"Certainly not, Miss Susanna," he smiled. "I've been considering it for twenty years."

"Then you ought to stop considering it and pop it." Susanna laughed, and Mr. Culver also.

"I hardly think I'll ever do that," he said seriously. "I wouldn't know how to go about it to make my case half presentable. I've given myself up, you know, as a bad job."

"Some of these new women will be charging down on you one of these days, teaching you the newer doctrine that women have the right to say whether you have the right to do as you please with yourself. In other words, some one of them will capture you in spite of yourself."

"Not much they won't," asserted Mr. Culver with a great show of courage. "If there is anything I don't want to marry, it's a woman with fool notions of that kind."

Susanna's heart went down to her shoes on the instant. Here was an insurmountable obstacle in her path, and with Mr. Culver holding to such an opinion, what good would a proposal be from her, even if she should muster up courage enough to make it. The thought made her mute for a minute, and in that minute a new thought came, one that had been there before, but had gone woolgathering, while she was beating around the bush with the new woman idea.

"I think myself they are horrid," she said with an effort to swallow something that would not go down very easily. "But there is the Leap year privilege. All women, new and old, can claim that, and you mustn't forget that this is leap year."

"I had forgotten it," he said, moving his chair over into the far corner of the fireplace, but still not so far away that he was out of the pleasant influence of Susanna's nearness. He sat there for an instant making himself shiver with terror, and then he moved back, possibly a little nearer than before.

"Forewarned is forearmed," she said, "and now that I have told you of the dangers ahead, I hope you will profit by my advice."

"Oh, I'm not afraid," he asserted in a good voice, "I'm just waiting for that sort of thing. The custom, or tradition, or whatever you may call it, is an old fashioned one and only an old-fashioned woman would think of it, and that is the kind I want. So none of them had better try it, unless she means business."

Surely no finer opening could be presented to a young woman in her mood than this, and Susanna gave herself a little shake and took another long breath. The time had come, and she was not the woman to lose so glorious an opportunity.

"Mr. Culver," she began in a firm voice and with great earnestness, "I have for a long time been thinking that you ought to marry, and I have even gone so far as to select just such a woman as I think would suit you. I have had two or three consultations with her, and she is willing that I should present the matter to you, because I know you so well, and you will understand it better, from me than if she should present it herself."

This impersonal style was eminently pleasing to Susanna, and she felt that her task was not going to be so hard after all, but she had not considered Mr. Culver's views sufficiently.

When she was about to proceed further with her remarks Mr. Culver showed signs of real anxiety and arose to his feet.

"Miss Susanna," he exclaimed, "don't say another word. Really, I cannot listen to it."

"But I must say it to you," she insisted, because, as it seemed to her, that was the proper way to conduct a successful courtship, and now that she had begun it, she most decidedly wished it to be successful.

"I tell you I won't hear it. This is entirely unexpected, and I am sure nothing in my conduct has ever warranted you in broaching this subject to me."

Mr. Culver was very evidently in earnest, and Susanna almost chuckled to herself, for this was the very way young women acted under the circumstances in which Mr. Culver was placed. All it needed now was a little more coaxing, and Susanna nerved herself for the final pop.

"Perhaps you have not thought so," she said in her softest voice, "but to me there has ever been a desire to say to you what I am now saying. Mr. Culver—John," and Susanna came very close to him, notwithstanding she was so nervous she hardly knew what to do.

"Hold on, Susanna, hold on," he exclaimed. "Confound it," [that shocked her, for she knew no girl ever talked that way under such circumstances, however much she might have thought it] "I don't want you to be talking in any other woman's interest. There is only one woman in the world that I want, and—and—and—" [Mr. Culver was getting nervous himself now, and Susanna gasped] "and—oh, Susanna," he said desperately, "don't you know that woman is you? You, Susanna. Don't you know it is you?"

Mr. Culver caught Susanna's two hands in his, and looked into her eyes with such a pleading, pathetic, intense sincerity that all her plans were consumed as straw in a fierce blaze, and she simply tumbled into his arms and let him finish the proposal she thought she had begun in such a masterly manner.

And Mr. Culver finished it with glittering success, much to the relief of Miss Susanna Morton.—W. J. Lampton in New York Sun.

Charles L. Williams, M. D., aged 81 years, was sentenced to two years' imprisonment in Baltimore Thursday for obtaining money under false pretences. His operations are said to have extended over many of the large cities of the country.

A Pennsylvania man named Moon, was presented with a daughter by his wife. That was a new Moon. The old man was so overcome that he got drunk. That was a full moon. When he got sober he had only 25 cents—that was the last quarter.—Ex.

Barbara N. Laib, of Philadelphia, who sued the Pennsylvania railroad company to recover damages for the loss of her husband, who was killed by a train at Holmesburg Junction, was awarded $10,000 Thursday by a jury in the common pleas court.

The DuBois Express says there were six corpses in Reynoldsville in one day recently, and four of the deaths were caused by measles and pneumonia. The epidemic there has proved of a very virulent character. The epidemic is worst at Prescottville at present. The public schools will probably be closed.

Five Fifth Ward assessors in Philadelphia were held in $1000 bail each Thursday to answer the charge of registering fictitious names for the purpose of committing frauds on election day. Three other residents of the ward were held on the charge of aiding the registration of unqualified voters.

Mrs. Elizabeth Greenfield's husband drove a delivery wagon in Harrisburg and while at work, some months ago, a trolley car hit the wagon and knocked Mr. Greenfield into the street. He died from the injuries, and a jury at Harrisburg on Wednesday of last week awarded the widow $3750 damages.

It is reported that negotiations are in progress for the purchase of fifteen acres of land near Buena Vista station by a number of capitalists, in order that a lake for boating and bathing purposes may be dug. Falls creek will supply the water. A proposed trolley system between points of interest on the mountain is said to be considered.

August Rexroth, proprietor of the Fulton House, McConnellsburg, had to have his fine, large mastiff "Jack" killed a few days ago. From some cause the animal became crazed and vicious, and if he had not been killed would doubtless have done somebody harm. He was the pet of the household and guests of the hotel, and the necessity for killing him was much regretted.

It was given out by good authority Thursday evening that the officials to a man, from Governor Hastings down, were now in line, and heartily endorsed Matthew Stanley Quay for president. It is also reported that Governor Hastings would be a delegate-at-large to the next national Republican convention, with Senator J. Donald Cameron and S. W. Davenport, of Erie.

In the United States court at Memphis, Tennesseee, Wednesday, Feb. 12, the administrator of the estate of A. G. Mitchell was given a verdict against various life insurance companies for $80,000. Mitchell bought all the insurance in St. Louis, November 7, 1894, and was killed in the suburbs of Memphis by falling from a train, on the following morning. The companies alleged suicide or gross negligence."

The Senate committee on Military Affairs Thursday ordered favorable reports upon the bills to authorize the issue of Springfield rifles to each State and Territory for the National Guards, in exchange for other rifles now held, and to indemnify the state of Pennsylvania for money expended in 1864 for militia called into military service by the Governor under proclamation of the President of the United States.

Little Minnie Swanger, the self-confessed murderess of her uncle, William McGregor, had a hearing in Altoona on Monday of last week. Three witnesses were examined, Charles A. Greason, the drug clerk who sold her Rough on Rats; H. H. Howe, to whom she confessed having placed the poison in the coffee, and Jail Warden Baird, who was present when she made the confession. The girl was remanded to jail.

An exchange tells its readers that "Johnstown's Board of Trade has started a business boom in that town. A motor works has been started, radiator works are coming, and negotiations are in progress for a $250,000 bicycle factory, a $50,000 wall paper plant, woolen weaving mill, and a shirt factory. A live Board of Trade is certainly a good thing for a town." This is a pointer for the organization perfected in Chambersburg last week.

The Hagerstown Globe of Thursday says: "Postmaster Clinton J. Gitt, Hanover, aged about 38 years, ate about twenty raw eggs during one afternoon and then died. He had been addicted to the too free use of liquor, and had been at the Keeley Institute in this city, about a year ago. Later he became a slave to the morphia habit, and had recently been under treatment for this." This would seem to be another instance in which the Keeley cure doesn't cure.

In referring to the Tuscarora Valley railroad the New Bloomfield Times says it has good prospects of reaching Dry Run and Fannettsburg early next summer. The people of Path Valley are subscribing for stock from one share up to twenty as last as they are called upon, and some of them are paying their subscription down. They have become tired waiting for the completion of the P. F. R. R. The finding of rich beds of phosphate in Juniata county has given the first named road a boom.

The Pattison boom for the presidency was launched Wednesday of last week in Harrisburg at the meeting of the state Democratic committee to arrange for the next state convention. A resolution was adopted in favor of the nomination of ex-Governor Robert E. Pattison for president by the national convention. The committee decided to hold the state convention at Allentown, April 29, to nominate two candidates for congress at large, eight electors at large and eight delegates at large to the national convention.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1896.

IN ANOTHER column we have given all the local election returns that we had room for. There are some changes from the usual results in certain sections of the state but none of them are striking. In some localities the Democrats made gains, but the results all over still show that the state is largely Republican with no immediate prospect of a change.

AT A meeting of the state central committee in Harrisburg Wednesday of last week, the 29th of April was fixed as the time and Allentown the place for holding the next Democratic state convention. A member of the committee offered a resolution endorsing Robert E. Pattison for the presidential nomination, which was carried unanimously. It looks now as though Pattison may get the endorsement of the convention.

THE REPUBLICAN political situation in Franklin county still maintains a sizzling heat if we may judge by the peppery editorials and the "vox populi" communications in the two papers of that political persuasion, and one that poses as a neutral or non-political organ, but which seems to carry a blunderbuss over its shoulder and fires it off weekly (we will not say weakly) at certain game which it seems to have in sight. But the public have become accustomed to the noise, so that it is losing much of its effect. Everything has been said, one would think, that is needed to enlighten the public as to the views and claims of the respective candidates; then why not take up something else for discussion?

SOME FEW years ago an emotional and fairly educated young lady of Virginia, Amelia Rives, of excellent family, who wrote several sensational stories which were recognized more on account of their emotional character than for any other value they possessed, married Professor Chanler (we don't recall his initials) who then admired that style of writing. Mrs. Chanler manifested a number of idiosyncrasies of temper and habit which did not correspond with the ideas, and, possibly, the idiosyncracies of her husband, so these were incompatibilities, and then followed a divorce. Now, we read that Mrs. Rives-Chanler has married a member of the Russian nobility Prince Troubetzkoy. We hope the marriage may be the beginning of connubial happiness but we cannot refrain from quoting Rip Van Winkle in his exclamatory sigh: "Poor Derrick!" It is to be hoped that the prince will keep his bride warm with his affections and the furs which only a Russian or Siberian climate can furnish.

WE HEAR it rumored on the streets that Alex. Stewart, of Scotland, is likely to be the next chairman of the Franklin county Republican committee. We had no idea that Comrade Stewart had any taste for leadership in politics but from what we know of him we have no doubt that he will always be ready to express himself frankly and candidly on any policy he may favor or any opinions he may have. Never having been accused of cowardice or timidity when he was in the army, and never having been accused of hypocrisy or double-dealing in politics or anything else it would seem natural that his friends and his enemies, whether of his own, or of an opposing party, would always know where to find him. A party that wants fair, open dealing, and that is willing to call things by their right names should not want a more fearless or a more aggressive leader. He may not understand the "art of shaking hands" as some politicians do, but he knows how to call things by their right names, and when occasion demands he has no hesitancy in doing so.

THE NORTH POLE.

The story that Dr. Nansen, a Norwegian, has discovered the North Pole and finds it to be on land in a hilly or mountainous region will be very gratifying to scientists if it should prove true. The reports come second hand, however, and are not from Dr. Nansen himself. Everybody who has any knowledge of geography, knew long ago that there is a location called the North Pole which is the northern point or end of the axis of the earth. but of what benefit to mankind the finding of that point will be to the world at large is hard to determine. Many lives have been lost, much suffering has been endured, and much money expended to find this point and now if it is found what of it?

We will wait for confirmation of the reports and then we will wait for geographers and astronomers to tell us how our good may be enhanced or our practical knowledge increased by the discovery.

SENATOR QUAY and Ex-Governor Pattison are spoken of as among the possibilities for presidential candidates in the coming campaign. One is and has been for years the leader of his party and the other has been the idol—we might say the Mascot of his. The situation at present, however, does not indicate the nomination of either of the candidates. It is not generally believed tnat Quay wants it or that Pattison could get it, if, by the time of the convention, there should be any hope that the Democrats might succeed in electing the next President. Yet the changes in politics are so sudden and so great that predictions as to what a day may bring forth amount to but little.

WHAT THE BALLOTS SAY.

The Elections in Franklin County on Tuesday. Some Surprises.

There was more interest in the elections throughout the county on Tuesday than was expected. There was also in many districts a larger vote than was expected. In Chambersburg the result was somewhat of a surprise. The Republicans have been as a rule electing their entire ticket in every ward but this time there was a change that was hardly expected by anybody. The Democrats elected three out of eight councilmen, a borough auditor, a constable, and a school director. The ward officers elected ted are as follows

First ward, Judge, Charles A. Yoh, r.; inspectors, J. C. Wolff, r., Lewis Peiffer. d.; School director, I. C. Walk, d.; council, J. S. Kennedy, r., F. Henderson, r.; constable, S. E. Johnston, r. There was no opposition to Mr. Johnston. Second ward: Judge, John W. Hoke, r.; inspectors, Geo. A. Kyner, r., S. F. Dockter, d.; school director, J. A. Strite, r.; council, P. Brough Montgomery, d., John W. Houser, r.; constable, C. C. Foltz, r.; Justice of the Peace, Van T. Haulman, r. There was no opposition to Mr. Haulman. Third ward: Judge, Solomon Swert, r.; inspectors, A. C. Burkhart, r., Jacob Wingert, d.; school director, W. E. Tolbert, r.; council, John Shreiner, d., R. S. Dittman, d.; constable, Geo. S. Kyle, d.; Justice of the Peace, G. H. Wood, r. Fourth ward: Judge, A. C. McGrath, r.; inspectors, W. C. Houser, r., F. E. Kuss, d.; school director, D. K. Appenzellar, r.; council, Geo. TOWN AND TOWNSHIP.

The Events of the County as Chronicled by "Review" Correspondents—Summary of the Week's News.

CONCORD.

On Friday night Mrs. Goshorn passed quietly to rest. She was the oldest lady in concord, being nearly 88 years old. Her remains were laid to rest in the M. E. cemetery on Sabbath afternoon.

On Friday evening of last week the citizens of Concord were shocked when they learned that two of their refined young men had stepped out on the diamond and engaged in a pugilistic battle over the sending of a valentine.

The series of meetings which have been going on in the M. E. church closed Sunday night. The closing sermon was preached by Rev. Covill.

Mrs. Maggie McMullen is still very sick and is not improving much.

LEO.

SPRING RUN.

The Spring Run U. B. church is enjoying a wonderful revival of religon at the present time. About forty persons have professed saving faith in Christ and the interest is unabated. The congregation is encouraged. The house is crowded nightly and a good part of this valley stirred. Rev. E. B. Somers is pastor.

Mrs. Almeda Keefer died at her home near Strasburg on Feb. 10. She was the daughter of John Smith at Mountain Green near Spring Run. The body was brought over to the residence of her parents. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. E. B. Somers. Burial at Reformed church cemetery near Fannettsburg. Her age was 19 years, 10 months and 24 days. She was a member of the U. B. church at Mountain Green. Her death was a peaceful one. She is survived by a husband and quite a young baby. The funeral was a large one. The husband and parents have the sympathy of many friends

QUINCY.

Friday week E. J. Small, the well known merchant at Altodale, slaughtered two hogs that weighted when dressed, 448 and 435 pounds. D. J. Heefner was head butcher.

Mrs. Malinda Knepper near Altodale slaughtered a hog that weighed, dressed, 473 pounds. Mrs. Knepper slaughtered very large hogs this season.

For some time past it has been in the minds of a very large number of the good, kind-hearted people in the community in and about Tomstown, to remember John Gossert and Mrs. Gossert, who have passed their three score years and ten, by giving them a large donation of the necessaries of life. Mr. Gossert has been in needy circumstances for some time past. He was always regarded as a strictly honest, industrious citizen. The committee that made the arrangements for this donation were: Mrs. John Rock, near Tomstown, and Miss Mary C. Ressler, near Roadside. The party met at the home of Daniel Mentzer, Thursday evening, February 6, and proceeded to the home of Mr. Gossert unknown to them. After they had all gathered in the house and all was quiet a prayer was offered by Charles Moats, after which that well-known hymn was sung, "Jesus, lover of my soul," after which an address was delivered by Miss Mary C. Ressler and John Burns, thanking the neighbors and friends for their kindness in remembering those two poor people, who were given enough of the necessaries of life to do them until next summer. The donation consisted of flour, meat, potatoes, coffee, sugar, rice; beans, oatmeal, dry goods and other necessaries. [We have not the space to publish the long list of names of charitable people who contributed to the donation.—ED.]

Joshua Dull, Polk Hill, wears an unusually pleasant smile because he is the father of twins, a son and a daughter, who are hale and hearty. He can well feel proud of such a little company about him.

Chas. J. Smith, Fox Hill, a few days ago received a letter from a job printing company asking that his family buy from this company memorial cards because of Mr. Smith's death which had been announced in some papers. Mr. Smith is very glad to say that he heard nothing of his death and knew nothing of it until this letter. He is in very vigorous health.

Mrs. Catharine, wife of Emanuel Rock, Rock's Spring, died Saturday morning, after an illness of several years, although her death at this time was very unexpected to her many friends. She was 79 years of age. She had many friends in the community and was known as a faithful member of the Mormon branch of the church. She leaves to mourn her loss a kind husband, one son, Alexander Rock, and two daughters, Mrs. James Verdier and Mrs. John Beisecker, all of Quincy township. She was buried in the Quincy graveyard Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Rev. J. W. Kiracofe preached the funeral sermon.

Saturday last B. R. Summers and family, D. M. Wertz and members of his family and Dr. H. M. Fritz and family, Quincy, attended the funeral of Mrs. John Hemminger at Greencastle. The news of her death was a great surprise to a very large number of her friends throughout the entire community as it had not been known by many that she was sick.

John D. Ickes and family, Southampton township, were visiting in the family of Mr. Ickes' father-in-law, Rev. John Walk, and his brother-in-law, Postmaster George C. Walk, Saturday and Sunday.

Jacob Lloyd Snyder, son of Ida Tarman, died at the home of his grandfather, John Tarman, Saturday morning after an illness of several weeks from a complication of diseases. First he suffered from whooping cough and then from diphtheria. He was a bright little fellow, good and kind, and had just arrived at such an age that he was interesting. He was aged 8 years, 4 months and 7 days. He was buried Monday evening. Revs. J. B. Mentzer and Geo. Perie preached the funeral sermons.

Tuesday a week four young men of Quincy township left Five Forks to make their homes in the western states. They were Walter Benedict, Harry Summers, who will go to Abiline, Illinois; Harry Ritter, Lanark, Illinois, and Daniel Deardorff, Mt. Morris, Ill. D. W. T.

A Camp Fire In Housum Post Hall.

The camp-fire committee of Housum Post have arranged for a camp-fire on Friday evening, which will no doubt be an enjoyable affair. General Young, of the Scotland school and a number of other veterans who are also entertaining talkers will address the company. There will also be excellent vocal and instrumental music. The Ladies' Circle will serve refreshments in the dining hall later in the evening.

The Franklin Review.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1896.

A WORD IN PASSING.

Town and County Briefs With a Bit of Comment—Happenings of the Week and a Forecast of Coming Events.

Benjamin Price, an aged and highly esteemed citizen of Waynesboro, was stricken with paralysis a few days ago.

Deputy Sheriff Jones has bought of W. R. Noble the George McGowan farm of 111 acres near Richmond on private terms.

Pneumonia has been quite prevalent in St. Thomas and vicinity. In a number of families there were two serious cases at one time.

J. D. Kauffman, Upper Strasburg, lost a valuable cow recently; distemper was the cause of her death. He had paid $150 for the animal.

John C. Haynes, of Shade Gap and Miss Annie M. Harry were married at the home of the bride, near Dry Run, on the 12th inst., by Rev. Thomas Dobbin.

Denton Patterson will have a shooting match on the Curtin farm north of town on Saturday next, February 22. The contest will be for a lot of fine turkeys some of which weigh 33 pounds each.

Hon. T. M. Mahon has our thanks for copies of the Congressional Record which are received regularly at the REVIEW office. Much in them is of interest now and will continue to be, for reference hereafter.

It is said that Dr. N. C. Schæffer, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, will probably retire from his position to accept the superintendency of the Reading city schools of which Prof. S. A. Baer is now superintendent.

J. W. Moore, of Fannettsburg, who has been working in the large tannery in Middletown, Pa., for several months was compelled to quit work on account of illness. He is now resting at home after visiting his sister, Mrs. Kann, at Scotland for some days.

The butchering season is about over but W. A. Seilhamer, of Quincy, sends us word by a friend that he recently killed two fine porkers and hung both on one gammon stick. D. C. Zentmyer was the chief butcher and he is ready to explain how it was done.

Stevens' Post, G. A. R., will have a camp-fire in their hall in Fayetteville on Tuesday evening next, February 25. A number of visitors have been invited and a large number of members are expected to be present. There will no doubt be a good time among the boys.

John E. Poe, New Franklin, is a busy farmer these winter days. On his farm near Marion he is putting up a limekiln which should yield 4000 bushels. A hay-shed is also being erected 32x50 feet and something like a mile of stout wire fence. Verily, Mr. Poe is pushing things.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered in the Presbyterian church in Fannettsburg Sunday next. Preparatory services will begin tomorrow—Friday—evening, at 7 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Rose, of Mercersburg, will assist the pastor, Rev. J. Smith Gordon, at these services.

Dr. Wm. F. Teeter, 209, South Main street, Chambersburg, Pa. Painless extraction, fine fillings, crown and bridge work, artistic artificial teeth. All work guaranteed. Won't be underbid in prices. 20 years' experience with all the latest and best approved methods in dentistry. Oct. 5. tf.

The restaurant property on Second street belonging to Geo. W. Cooper, and which was reported to have been sold to A. P. Newman, is to be torn down and a handsome and commodious building for restaurant purposes erected on the same lot. Jno. H. Mull has re-rented the property and has license.

Jacob Shafer, Sen., East Queen street while working at his trade on East Washington street, yesterday morning, fell and broke his leg. Though up in years Mr. Shafer is still an active, hard-working mechanic who has the respect of everybody. His many friends will sympathize with him in his accident and hope that the injured limb may soon become strong again.

Rev. Jonathan W. Miller will deliver his lecture on "The Battle of Gettysburg" in the Union church in Fayetteville on Wednesday evening next, February 26. There will be army songs and other music before and after the lecture. A large chart will be used to explain the positions of the troops on different parts of the field during the three days' fight.

The last entertainment of the Y. M. C. A. course will be given Monday evening, February 24. It will be "Polk Miller's Dialect Recitals." There will be stories and songs of the old times and plantation days down south, in the southern negro dialect which has always been captivating and never more so than now, if properly given. All who enjoy an entertainment of this kind—and who does not?—will be well repaid by spending the evening in Rosedale.

The first number of a handsome four-page weekly paper was issued by the Scotland Industrial school on Thursday of last week. It is under the editorial and mechanical supervision of John H. Pomeroy, formerly of the Repository. The work is done—and creditably, too—by the students, a number of whom will learn the art of printing. The name of the paper is, The Industrial School News. It deserves a wide circulation especially among veterans and their families.

He Reached a Good Old Age.

Daniel C. Shirley was born in Baltimore, Md., November 6, 1809, and died near Mount Rock schoolhouse, in Southampton township, this county, February 3, 1896, aged 86 years, 2 months and 28 days.

He learned the shoemaking trade with a man named Whaling, in Carroll county, Md. He came to Pennsylvania in 1840 and worked at his trade for Joseph Van Lear, Charles McNulty and William Holland of Fayetteville.

In 1843 he was married to Miss Martha Ritter, daughter of Ludwick Ritter, of Fayetteville. He did his first harvesting on the farm owned by Josiah Grier in Southampton township, now owned by Geo. W. Millhouse, and he bound his last wheat on the same farm.

After his marriage he resided in Fayetteville or vicinity until 1868, when he moved to Culbertson's Row, resided there two years and then moved to near Mount Rock schoolhouse where he lived the remainder of his days. He is survived by two sons and one daughter, fifteen grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

Items of Interest About You and Our Friends and Those Whom We All Know.

Charles Housum, of Altoona, is visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Lucy, widow of the late Col. P. B. Housum, in town.

Miss Anna, daughter of Hon. S. L. Buckley, Fort Littleton, Fulton county, is visiting friends in Chambersburg.

Henry Hostetter, of Lurgan, who had been west for a year returned home last week. He will probably go west again in the spring.

George McCurdy of Fort Loudon was a visitor yesterday. Being a strong Republican he doesn't exactly approve of the way the elections went. There were too many Democrats elected to suit him.

C. J. Eckenrode, of Greenvillage took occasion while in town Saturday evening to call at the REVIEW office and have his subscription marked paid to 1897. He thinks the new paper fills the bill.

Edward S. Reisher, of Meadowlands, Washington county, Pa., has been visiting friends and relatives in Chambersburg and Hamilton township. He received many kindly greetings on every hand.

B. H. Stitt, of Letterkenny, though quite busy while in town Tuesday, took time to call at the REVIEW office and leave a deposit which squares his subscription account until after the next huckleberry season.

Herman Umverzaght and J. E. Harvey, two of Roxbury's veterans paid the REVIEW office a friendly visit yesterday. They left a generous sample of Lurgan township apples which the folks in the office enjoyed very much. They both read the REVIEW regularly and do not hesitate to pronounce it a good paper.

George S. Doran, of Burnt Cabins, spent Thursday night of last week in town. Mr. Doran brought a carload or two of sheep over to Richmond and intended taking them to Philadelphia, but arriving in Chambersburg he found a dealer who took them off his hands at a profit so he returned home on Friday. Mr. Doran is one of those kindly, friendly people whom it does one good to meet. He and about thirty other people in Burnt Cabins and vicinity read the REVIEW and like it. Mr. Doran doesn't need to bother about his subscription until "after harvest" at any rate.

William McDonald, judge of elections at Fort Loudon, called yesterday to say "how d'e do?" and drop a dollar in the REVIEW slot. William is not so lusty as he was twenty-five years ago when he and the writer were accustomed to winter on Fulton county buckwheat, wild turkey, deer and other good living, but his smile is as broad, his greeting as friendly and his jokes as spicy as they were then, and his friendship is just as true. William spent some time in the army among the woodticks in front of Petersburg, but as he is not given to lying he never tells any war stories.

One of the Odd Fellows from Shippensburg who attended the banquet on Thursday evening, and took time to pay his respects to the REVIEW and its publisher and advance his subscription for a year was L. M. Robinson whose daily life is an exemplification of the principles of the order—Friendship, Love and Truth.—There are no better Odd Fellows, but many not so true to the principles of the order as our friend Robinson whom we have known for a score of years as an Odd Fellow and a man. Lewis is a good fellow, whose heart is full of the sweet milk of human kindness.

Bountifully Banquetted.

Thursday evening of last week after the regular weekly meeting Columbus Lodge, I. O. O. F., gave a banquet to Cumberland Lodge, of Shippensburg, at the Indian Queen hotel.

Besides the members of the lodge in whose honor the feast was laid, a number of members of other lodges were invited and were present to enjoy the occasion. Nearly all the Odd Fellows in Chambersburg who hold membership in outside lodges were invited and were present to enjoy the hospitality of old Columbus. Nearly 150 sat down to the table and partook of the good things, after which followed words of greeting, encouragement and cheer, spiced with wit and prompted by the patron virtues of the order. It was a good time and the feasters and the feasted will so remember it.

About the Court House.

A Cowardly Assault Upon An Old Man.

We are informed by a resident of Fort Loudon that there was an ugly fight in that place on Friday night last, which was rather a brutal assault than a fistic contest. Samuel Stenger, an aged resident of the vicinity of the village spent the early part of the evening in town and as he was going down street on his way home, Otho McKelvey, a young man, went out into the street and attacked Mr. Stenger, who is nearly 70 years of age, and beat him about the head most brutally. It is said that McKelvey used a bunch of shot or some similar weapon which he held in his hand. Mr. Stenger's face and head were badly cut and though he had the courage he had not the strength to defend himself against his young and muscular assailant. No provocation could warrant such a cruel and cowardly assault upon a man like Mr. Stenger, with the weight of so many years resting upon him. If our information is correct this is a case in which the power of the law should be invoked to punish the assault. Those who have no sense of honor nor respect or charity for old age should, if possible, be restrained, from committing such outrages.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

Those Who Have Passed to the Great Beyond—The Death Record In Franklin County and Elsewhere.

Mrs. Susan Patterson died near Fannettsburg on Sunday last, aged about 80 years. She was well known and had the kindly regard of a large number of acquaintances.

Mrs. Catharine, wife of Abner Mull, died at her home near Fayetteville Saturday night last, after a protracted illness. She leaves her husband and a number of grown children. The burial took place Tuesday at Sharpe's church.

Mrs. Ella Shope, wife of Chas. Shope, died at her home on North Main street shortly after midnight, Tuesday morning, after a serious mental and physical illness of some months. She was a daughter of Capt. C. Pisle, and an estimable lady. She had been an active and consistent member of the Church of God for a number of years. The funeral will take place Friday; interment in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Charles E. Shike whose home, before she was married, was near Shady Grove this county, died at the house of a midwife in Brooklyn, N. Y., on Thursday of last week. Her body was taken through Chambersburg and to her parents' home on Sunday. Mr. Shike formerly lived in Peters township. He deeply regrets the death of his wife to whom he was very much attached.

Francis Peckman died at the home of his son-in-law, Jacob Keller, two miles south of St. Thomas on Saturday morning at 4 o'clock, aged 79 years. His funeral took place Tuesday at 9 a.m.; interment in Cedar Grove cemetery. Mr. Peckman is survived by the following children: Jacob, of Greene township; Samuel, of Williamson; Mrs. Mary Dice, of Letterkenny; Mrs. Maggie Besore and Mrs. Annie Lesher, of Red Bridge; Mrs. Laura Karper, of Mercersburg; Mrs. Ettie Keller at whose home he died. His wife has been dead six or seven years. For many years and up to the time of his death he was a consistent member of the Reformed church.

***

Miss Laura Myers, daughter of John Myers, died at her father's home near Crider's church on Thursday of pneumonia. She had been most faithful in attending and nursing other members of the family and when they grew better she became ill and her overtaxed system was not able to withstand the disease which has been so prevalent in that vicinity. Her age was 21 years. The funeral took place on Saturday, services at Crider's church. The burial was in Brechbill's graveyard. Miss Myers was an estimable young lady and will be sadly missed, not only in her home, but in the community of which she was a member.

Mrs. Anna A. Etter, wife of Deputy Collector E. G. Etter, died at her home, East Market street, Thursday morning of last week, February 13, 1896, after an illness of some months. In the early part of last summer she submitted to a surgical operation for the removal of an internal tumor. The operation was apparently successful and she recovered seemingly her usual health but after several months she again grew worse, and in spite of all that medical skill could do or affection prompt she gradually failed until death released her from her suffering. Mrs. Etter was the daughter of the venerable John G. Scheible and his estimable wife. She is survived by six children: Mrs. Amos Strickler, of Guilford township and Misses Emma, Minnie and Alice and S. Guyer and Edgar S., who are at home.

Mrs. Etter was highly esteemed by a large number of friends all of whom, besides her family, will regret her death. She was at the time of her death and had been for many years one of the most useful members of the First Lutheran church. The funeral took place Monday, the services being conducted by her pastor, Rev. E. H. Leisenring.

Samuel Diffenderfer died at his home in St. Thomas on Friday after several months of ill health. He had been quite ill last summer for a number of weeks but had apparently recovered his usual health and was able to go about again. Recently he was attacked with pneumonia and this caused his death.

Mr. Diffenderfer was a genial, kindly old gentleman and had many friends. He was a soldier in the late war, having served in company I., 158th regiment and up to his death was a member of Jas. G. Elder Post, G. A. R. in St. Thomas. For many years and to the end of his life he was a member of the Lutheran church in St. Thomas. His age was about 75 years. He is survived by four sons: Cyrus, with whom he lived, in St. Thomas; William, who resides on a farm in St. Thomas township; John, of Williamson and Robert who lives in the southwest——

The funeral took place on Sunday; interment in the Lutheran graveyard in St. Thomas.

Mr. Diffenderfer was one of the first friends of the REVIEW and one of the first to speak words of encouragement and give substantial support to the new paper. He had a wide circle of friends who are sad to learn of his death.

His wife has been dead for some years.

After Fifty Years At His Trade.

S. M. Shillito has retired from the gunsmithing business after fifty years work at the trade. He began to make and mend guns when only a boy. Then there was an interval of a few years when he was otherwise employed. For twenty years, until a year ago, he had his shop at one place, on Queen street. For the past sixteen consecutive years he has been and still is treasurer for the Directors of the Poor. He may hereafter be found at his home on 171 East Queen street where he will attend to the duties of that position.

For many years Mr. Shillito has also been treasurer for the board of trustees of the M. E. church and still holds that position. He also has charge of the Sunday school funds and those of some other of the church societies.

During the early years of his life Mr. Shillito was a resident of McConnellsburg and he still has some pleasant recollections of the place and the older people who live there but nearly all his acquaintances there have passed over to the silent majority.

He is a native of this county, however, having been born in Fort Loudon. Mr. Shillito is still a bachelor, but he will not state whether this is his own fault or not. When he acknowledges the fact he never sighs, but looks pleasant and shows no signs of discontent over the fact that he never became a Benedict. Nor does he intimate that he has any thought of changing his mode of life, with regard to his relations toward the fair sex.

A GALLANT REGIMENT.

The 107th Pennsylvania Which Was Largely Made up of Brave Franklin County Boys.

One of the bravest regiments that Pennsylvania sent into the field was the old 107th of which several companies were organized in Franklin county. The late Robert W. McAllen of Fannettsburg, who is remembered most kindly by all who knew, him was its commander until ill health made it impossible for him to remain in the field. Jacob S. Brand was one of its gallant captains and George Cook a brave lieutenant. All are long since gone over to the great majority. Shortly after one of the battles in front of Petersburg in August, 1864, the writer met the quartermaster of the regiment, J. Mac. Montgomery, a St. Thomas boy who lived many years in Fannettsburg and now resides in Washington, Pa. Upon inquiry as to where the regiment was the quartermaster answered, "There are only thirty-two of us that I can find to place on my reports. Many are under the sand, some have gone home permanently disabled by wounds or disease, and many of them are in southern prisons. Our old regiment is done for." Of the boys the writer remembers as friends before the war who went out with the regiment and never returned two will never be forgotten, one was a relative the other a schoolmate. The former was Andrew Ramer whose life went out on Christmas day, 1864 in Salisbury prison, North Carolina, the other, George Wineman, laid down his life at Gettysburg in the first day's fight, north of the Chambersburg pike. A bullet in the brain stopped the heart beats and turned the roses in his youthful cheeks to ashes. He died near where Wm. H. Davis whose widow keeps the toll-gate west of Chambersburg, received the wound which left him not a day's relief from pain until he too, passed over, about two years ago.

Several days ago a friend handed us a clipping from an issue of a Chambersburg paper, just after the battle of Antietam. What paper it was neither our friend nor we know, but the clipping is part of a communication from a writer on the battle, and who was evidently a soldier in another regiment. It is as follows:

"A few days since, I paid a visit to the Reserves and the 107th. They have suffered severely in the late engagements. The 107th made a most gallant charge at the battle of South Mountain, and was highly complimented on the field by Gen. Duryea. As it charged up the mountain the General sat upon his horse and turning to some New York Regiment, spoke at the top of his voice:—'Look at those gallant Pennsylvanians! They are brave boys! Their state may well be proud of them! Now, New York, do your duty!' During this charge the 107th passed the Reserves who had expended all their ammunition. The Reserves set up a tremendous cheer, and the enemy thinking at least ten thousand men were charging upon them, broke and ran and were driven at least two miles by the 'gallant Pennsylvanians!'"

What emotions swell within our breasts as we turn from the busy life of today to the unfading pictures that hang on "memory's wall" and find ourselves in the midst of the boys we loved whose sparkling eyes and ruddy, laughing faces we still see. How impossible it seems that they are gone and we are changed and still changing until we shall join them again, let us hope, when youth, innocence, vigor and happiness are renewed throughout eternity.

It is a quickening, comforting thought, however, to realize that the boys with whom we sat in school and played at noon, and who went into the white sulphurous smoke of battle and died there, gave their lives in a holy cause. They offered themselves and were immolated on the altar of freedom in the highest significance that the word freedom can have.

"On Fame's eternal camping ground
Their silent tents are spread,
And glory guards with hallowed round
The bivouac of the dead."

She Declined the Bequest.

From the Hagerstown papers we get a curious item of news from Hancock, Md. Some months ago J. B. Delaplaine, brother of the late Dr. Delaplaine of that place, died in New York City. Among his legacies he left to Miss Katie Henderson, his affianced wife $1000. Miss Henderson was recently married to Samuel McClay of Pittsburg. A few days ago she received the $1000 that had been bequeathed to her by Mr. Delaplaine, and not wishing to retain it she sent a check for $500 to Mrs. A. J. Delaplaine in Hancock, Md., and $500 to Mr. Delaplaine's aunt, Miss Gussie Bush of the Washington, D. C., soldiers' home.

Missionary Day in the M. E. Church.

Sunday last was annual missionary day in the M. E. church in Chambersburg. Rev. M. L. Ganoe of Altoona, was present and preached in the morning and evening and addressed the Sunday school in the afternoon. All his discourses were excellent and were much enjoyed. The male chorus sang delightfully at the Sunday school and the evening service.

At the conclusion of the morning sermon the first missionary collection was taken, amounting to $113.33. The collection from the school in the afternoon amounted to $525.51, and for the year, $560.22. During the year the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society contributed $76.00, the Home Society, $78.81, and the Nagasaki Society $46. The "Birthday Box" of the infant school contained $6.91, and Mrs Shillito's Box contributed $5. Though this saintly lady has been dead many years, her children, in loving testimony to her example as a model mother and a devout christian, year after year bring this box to the school with its contents, every year amounting to $5.

The total missionary collection from the congregation, the school, the missionary societies and the other sources above named amounted to $880.27. The school contributed during the year for other purposes $337.01. The missionary and other collections from the school were $68.35, greater than last year.

The pastor, Rev. B. H. Mosser, and his congregation were much pleased with the work of the day and the contributions for the year.

Thrown From a Horse and Killed.

David the 16-year-old son of Amos H. Detrich, was fatally injured on Tuesday of last week at the home of his father, near Greencastle by being thrown from a colt. The young man had mounted the colt; it became unmanageable and threw him off upon his head rendering him unconscious and causing his death on Friday last. This was the oldest son and was the principal help on the farm as Mr. Detrich is and has been for years a great sufferer physically and unable to do any work himself. There is much sympathy with the family in their loss.

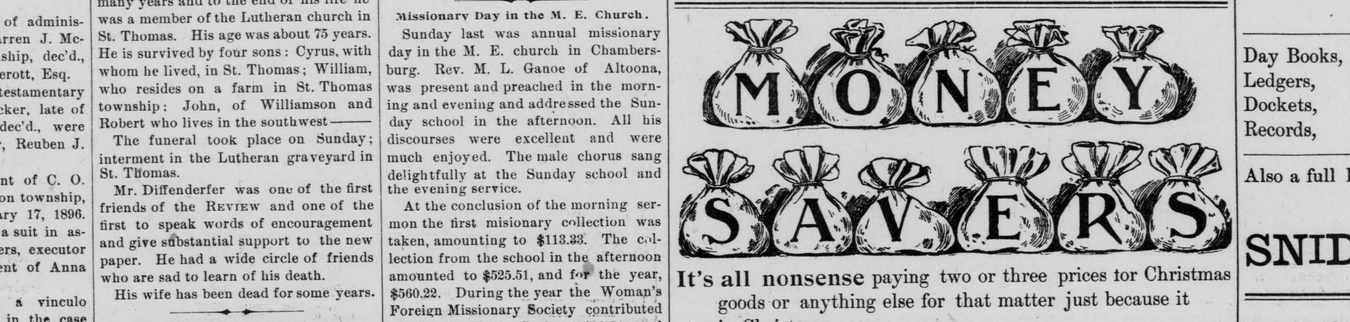
H. B. GANOE.



It's all nonsense paying two or three prices for Christmas goods or anything else for that matter just because it is Christmas.

The fact that you are generous is no reason why we should be less so.

We sell Christmas goods at the same profits you pay for any other kind any other time.

You will find our prices are money savers these days and our store a money saving institution when everybody is on the make.

We don't work for your confidence eleven months in the year and trick you now. We don't do business that way.

W. O. APPENZELLAR,

This winter's Heating Stoves are especially good. The Art Perpect, Brilliant Sunshine and Perfect Gem Heaters heat the bedrooms above equally as well as the lower rooms.

The new Gold Coin Stoves have had a wonderful sale. Beautiful stoves and excellent workers—no wonder people are delighted.

A Wood Stove named the "Wonder" is a surprise. Not a door on the stove. Fire built from the top and yet no smoke. A chunk lasts all day and heats a room. It is certainly a marvel. Price $8.50.

Many other Wood Stoves that are made to heat. Dozens of Coal Stoves—handsome and plain. Large lot of second-hand stoves of all kinds, cheap.

Lard Cans—plenty of cheap ones—and our make, the very best. They will neither leak nor melt off the bottoms. We will pay for any loss. Come, try them. Prices are right.

CHURCH AND SUNDAY SCHOOL.

The Lesson For Sunday, February 23.

International Bible lesson for Sunday, February 23, 1896, from Luke 8: 43-55. Title: Faith Encouraged. Golden text: "Thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace." The time of the occurrences given in this lesson is thought to have been in the autumn of A. D. 28, in the 32d year of the life of Christ on earth. The place was the city of Capernaum in which so many "mighty works" were done by our Lord. It is thought He was on the way from the home of "Matthew the publican" to the house of Jairus the ruler of the synagogue whose daughter had been very ill. but was now dead.

The first person noted in the lesson was the diseased woman who came up and timidly, furtively, touched the hem His garment. The others were Christ himself, Jairus the ruler, a multitude, including possibly all the disciples, the messenger from Jairus' house, the dead child and its mother.

To get the whole story of Jairus' daughter it is necessary to read the preceding part of the chapter, not named in the lesson, and it should all be read.

Following are the "Illustrative applications" of the lesson as given by Dr. H. Clay Trumbull in the Sunday School Times in which the attention is drawn to the different points in the lesson and their value to us is brought out:

Twelve years (v. 43). Twelve years of hopeless sickness are as a lifetime of endurance. Yet here is the record of one who was evidently not a sinner above others, who was a sufferer above many. Because one is called to such a trial as this, let it not be said or thought that that one is under God's displeasure, or is not loved of God. But for this woman's prolonged endurance of suffering, she would never have had the place which is hers in the gospel story. Who supposes that she now regrets her twelve years of trial?

Touched the border of his garment (v.44). It was not the border of his garment, nor yet the touch of it, that brought the desired cure. Jesus himself gave the cure; the faith that prompted the touch secured to the sufferer the cure from Jesus. It is not the work of Jesus that saves. He himself is the Saviour. Faith in Jesus as the Saviour, shown in the simplest way, secures salvation from him to the sinner who desires it. A faith-filled touch of the border of his garment is a call on him for help that will never be unheeded.

Jesns said, Who is it that touched me? (v. 45.) The Lord's interest is in the individunl in the crowd, rather than in the crowd of individuals. He who is the same yesterday and to-day and forever, as he turns himself to the family, or to the class, or to the school, or to the community, has, as it were, his whole thought centered on one individual in that gathering, as he asks the question, Who touched me? or, Who rejects me?

I perceived that power had gone forth from me (v. 46). It costs something to do good, no matter how the doer loves the doing. One can never really help another without some cost to himself. If we would be of any service in this world, we must consent to spend and be spent in that service. It is folly for us to hope that we can accomplish anything for anybody without some sacrifice and outlay on our part. And if any one does anything for us, we may be sure that it costs him something to do it. The freest gifts of earth are costly gifts to the giver. This truth ought never to be forgotten by the recipient.

He said: Daughter, thy faith hath hath made thee whole; go in peace (v. 48). It was a good thing to gain cure of bodily disease through a clandestine touch of Jesus. It was a better thing to gain communion with Jesus, and to secure his words of comfort, through falling down before him and telling him all the truth. The hope of salvation is not all that a sinner ought to long for; it is not all that he can have. Yet it is all that a great many sinners dare to think of as possible in their case. Present peace—peace in the life that now is—ought to be the possession of every sinner who counts on salvation for the life that is to come.

Fear not: only believe (v. 50). Fear not because of what you see of danger. Only believe because of what you know of Him to whom you have come in your trouble. Fear comes from sight. Rest of mind comes from trust in him who sees what you cannot see, and who tells you not to fear. It matters not how much you see In the line of barriers to hope. All you have to do is to look away from the seen, fixing your confidence on him who controls the seen and the unseen. To the loving disciple of Jesus the cheering call comes, in the face of difficulties, of discouragements, of temptations to despair, and of death itself, "Fear not: only believe."

They laughed him to scorn, knowing that she was dead (v. 53). It is a great misfortune to know so much as to be unable to trust beyond one's knowledge. Knowledge with faith is a help toward the highest truth. Knowledge without faith hinders progress toward truth. The man who is ready to laugh to scorn a suggestion of results beyond his present knowledge is incapable of the highest attainment in knowledge. He stands with his back to the light, and his overconfidence in the knowledge he has is a barrier to his increase in knowledge.

Her spirit returned, and she rose up immediately: and he commanded that something be given her to eat (v. 55) Raising the dead is a miracle. Keeping alive the living is an eminently practical matter. The one is done all at once, by the exercise of divine power: the other must be attended to little by little, in the use of human means. Yet the lesser work is no less important in its place than the greater, and in both cases the work is in the line of God's loving plans. In the spiritual life it is much the same as in life of the body. A soul that is raised from deadness must be kept alive and helped to grow through the daily bread of the word of truth. Has anybody's daughter or anybody's son been raised from spiritual deadness in your congregation or in your class recently? If so, your work for that revivified one is not finished, but is uewly begun. Give the living soul something to eat. See to it that the soul which God has made alive shall not starve to death in sight of your spiritual pantry, or be stunted and shriveled through insufficient nourishment at your hands.

Lawyer G. C. Kennedy of Lancaster, who was tried several months ago for embezzlement and acquitted on the ground of insanity, was discharged from the insane hospital at Harrisburg on Monday, after serving two weeks.

Will Commemorate Washington's Birthday.

Superintendent S. B. Shearer, of the Carlisle schools has requested the teachers of the schools in that borough to "set apart an hour of Friday afternoon, February 21, for the public school children to pay their just portion of this debt of gratitude to the memory of this great national benefactor by reading, by essay, by oration, by narrative, by anecdote, and by patriotic song, trace those lessons of love of universal liberty, and of unswerving devotion to our common country, on their impressible minds and hearts, thus implanting within them these true principles which characterized the noble Washington, and which when fully developed shall make them a generation of men and women invincible in their attachment to our great republic, and thus like the faithful generations of the historical past be fully qualified to meet any emergencies which might arise, and fully able to overthrow any enemies which might attempt to destroy it and thus until the very latest rendering our liberties safe, our public institutions secure and our beneficent government perpetual, and all these rich blessings as eternal as those principles upon which they rest."

We have no recommendations to make to the school authorities of Chambersburg but we cannot help but feel that the action of Superintendent Shearer in his efforts to properly observe this national holiday is worthy of commendation.

A Cork Pavement.

A Boston medical journal believes that it has found a pavement which unites in itself all the good qualities of other pavements, and has besides some special merits of its own. This is a pavement of cork, which has been used with success in some European cities and also in Austrailia, at first simply to deaden the noise in the neighborhood of hospitals and churches, but since the discovery of its merits, in streets generally. The cork pavement has been found durable and not unsightly, and it is reported to have particularly good qualities in its elasticity, and, above all, in the fact that horses do not slip upon it. The material, as described by the Boston publication, consists of granulated cork, mixed with mineral asphalt and other cohesive ingredients, compressed into large blocks. The cost is moderate and the cork is non-absorbent and inodorous. In laying it the blocks are imbedded in tar and rest npon a concrete basis six inches thick.

An Ideal Husband.

"We are wont," says Emerson, "to think that we are at the meridian of civilization. We are only at the cock-crowing and the morning star." Neither men nor women have outgrown the low conditions of society which obtained when the doctrine of male superiority was universally accepted. And we have not yet reached the time when we can boast of the "ideal husband" or the "ideal wife." Now and then one appears, and is immediately recognized as a being of a high and lovely type, more divine than human. In the minds of those who knew the private life of Wendell Phillips, he stands as the ideal husband of his time. The complete unselfishness of his love for his invalid wife—an invalid when she became his wife—made it a joy to him to lift her burdens to his shoulder, and to subordinate his life to hers when occasions required it. Accepting the work to which he seemed preordained, he entered the lists against American slavery, and put into the unequal combat all the forces of his being. Intellect, culture, eloquence, personal magnetism, remorseless moral logic, influence, money—all that he had and was were given to the service of the abolition movement. But he always wrought with his heart leaning towards his wife, and her slightest need of him was answered by his presence at her bedside.

"Do not return to Boston tonight!" entreated his friends in a neighboring town, where he had lectured: "the last train has left and you will be obliged to take a carriage into the city. It is a sleety November night, cold and raw, and you will have twelve miles of rough riding before you get home!"

"But at the end of them I shall find Anne Phillips!" was the lover-like reply, with a sudden illumination of the face.

They told him he was dying, and that the end was very near. "I am ready to go," was his reply, "and have no preparation to make. But I had hoped to stay with my wife to the end. Who will care for her as I have done?"

"They bore me on a cot into the room where Wendell was dying," said Mrs. Phillips, "for a last interview. I remember little about it for I was in terrible anguish. But I held myself in strong control, and did not groan, nor moan even, for that would have made it so much harder for poor Wendell to die.—North American Review.

THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The TIMES is a newspaper for intelligent men and women who want to read all the news of the world every day. The paper has distinguishing merits of its own. It is neither sensational nor dull. It is not sour-tempered. It is not frivolous or visionary. It sees plenty of good in the world and tells about it. It tells of the bad when it must, but not unwholesomely. It prints with fullness the record of human endeavor in many fields outside of business, politics and war—in literature, religion, science, art, sports and household matters. No paper in the country prints so many book reviews and so much book news. No paper has so complete a financial page—a daily manual for investors and officers of financial institutions. Its market reports—wool, cotton, breadstuffs, farm products, &c.—are the best in the country.

The Democracy of THE TIMES is of the old-fashioned sort—as old as Thomas Jefferson; majority rule, no bossism, no machine tyranny, the divorce of politics from private money-making, a sound currency, industrial emancipation, and every-day honesty. To promote the advance of the Democratic party along these lines it labors with heart and conscience and all its might.

THE NEW-YORK WEEKLY TIMES.

The subscription price of THE NEW-YORK WEEKLY TIMES is one dollar a year. THE WEEKLY TIMES is a capital newspaper. It contains all the current news condensed from the dispatches and reports of the daily edition, besides literary matter, discussions upon agricultural topics by practical farmers, full and accurate market reports of prices for farm produce, live stock, &c., and a carefully prepared weekly wool market.

The map, which has on its reverse side a complete map of the United States, has been adopted by numerous school districts in the State, and is the best and latest map issued. It is worth much more than the price of subscription but is given away freely to subscribers to introduce the paper to their notice in the firm belief that those who become acquainted with the merits of the New LEDGER will not be willing to give it up.

During 1896 the PUBLIC LEDGER'S former high place in journalism will be not only maintained, but advanced by improvements in every department, in the extension of its news service, literary attractions, and special features. To enable the publisher to make the proposed improvements, and to meet the steadily and rapidly growing circulation of the LEDGER, Messrs. Hoe & Co. have constructed for it and are now erecting four new Sextuple Presses of the latest and most approved design. These presses will increase the facilities for rapid printing 25 per cent., enhance the typographical appearance of the paper, and give more distinct impressions.

The LEDGER is first of all a newspaper giving all the news of the day, classified and in complete form. In the PUBLIC LEDGER every statement is verified, its news is therefore thoroughly reliable.

Outside of its news department (which includes special correspondence from all the important cities and towns in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Delaware) the LEDGER is an illustrated family newspaper of exceptional interest and value, giving special attention to domestic affairs, religious news and comment, social events, games, sports, the fashions of the day, literary, art, farm and garden, scientific and labor notes, building society notes, etc.

To its Special New York and Washington correspondence, long since rendered famous, it now adds letters from the chief Capitols of Europe.

Its financial news and market reports are complete and reliable.

The Saturday issue is a great compendium of every phase of social life, containing reading matter to suit every taste, compiled specially for the Saturday Edition of the LEDGER. Its treatise on the International Sunday School lesson is alone worth the price of subscription.

Its classified advertisements are as interesting as news and as widely read. The public has for years made the PUBLIC LEDGER its chief vehicle for the announcements of births, marriages, and deaths.

Agents wanted; liberal commissions paid. Address Circulation Department the LEDGER for terms.

WRITE FOR RATES FOR CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS. SUBSCRIPTION PRICES AS FOLLOWS:

The DAILY LEDGER (Sunday excepted), by mail, to any address in the United States or Canada, 50 cents per month; $6.00 per year.

Saturdays LEDGER (weekly), a great home journal, which should be in every country home, $1.00 per year.
